

San Jose Enterprise Zone

Updated February 9, 2012

The City of San Jose is currently at work making adjustments to the online database. The City anticipates doing Alpha and Beta testing of the web system February 19th.

After completion of the Beta testing is done, final adjustments will be made and the new site will be launched. We are still on track to launch in March. At the present time, we do not have a specific launch date. We anticipate knowing that information on or around February 24th.

Announcement Regarding Hiring Tax Credits and Issuing Vouchers

The City of San Jose is anticipating transitioning to a web based vouchering system in March 2012. The new web based vouchering system will require companies or their agents to enter and submit Hiring Tax credit applications and supporting documentation in order to receive a Hiring Tax Credit voucher from the City of San Jose. Once entered, representatives from the City will review and determine eligibility. If the application is approved, an electronic voucher will be issued through the online system.

In the interim, the City will continue to process vouchers we are currently in procession of and will continue to accept applications through the mail.

Please return to www.sjeconomy.com/ez/ for status updates on the progress of the system upgrade and the go live date.
