City Council Commends Flextronics for Contributions to San Jose Economy

SAN JOSE, CALIF., June 17, 2008—Mayor Chuck Reed recognized Flextronics in a commendation — presented at today’s San Jose City Council meeting — for the benefits the company provides to the San Jose economy and community.

With 300,000 square feet of manufacturing space in San Jose, Flextronics, a leading electronics manufacturing services (EMS) provider has established the industry’s standard for quality and service.

Flextronics meets the highest principles of corporate responsibility and integrity. They meet the City of San Jose’s green vision through cleaner technology, years of experience in green manufacturing and recycling and contributions in the design, use and implementation of lead-free solder. Flextronics also provides grants, disaster relief, medical aid, promotes employee volunteerism, supports academic programs and academic liaisons with local universities and sponsors educational programs focusing on disadvantaged students including those with learning disabilities or handicaps.

The City of San Jose commendation recognizes Flextronics for creating job opportunities in Silicon Valley, and the company’s continued contribution to the prosperity of the region by inspiring and hiring new talent. Flextronics, provides a safe and quality work environment and is known for having some of the most talented people in the industry, provides an atmosphere for employees to continuously improve their products.

The commendation presented by the Mayor and City Council is a part of San Jose's Business Appreciation Initiative, a key component of the City's Economic Development Strategy. This business-retention effort recognizes San Jose companies that meet at least one of the following criteria: fast-growth, significant sales tax generator, large employer, or publicly traded company headquartered in San Jose.
