

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BE A PART OF AMERICA'S MOST IMPORTANT CYCLING EVENT
VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES NOW AVAILABLE FOR 2009
AMGEN TOUR OF CALIFORNIA

Volunteers Needed for February 17 Start in San Jose

SAN JOSE, CALIF. (September 23, 2008)—Organizers for the 2009 Amgen Tour of California announced that volunteer opportunities for the popular professional cycling road race are now posted online at the official race Web site, www.amgentourofcalifornia.com. Volunteers looking for an opportunity to participate in the fourth-annual race can apply online for positions, including course marshal, security, media relations and medical control.

Volunteers are needed in San Jose during the Feb. 17 Stage 4 start of the race and can apply online for positions including, course marshal, security, media relations and medical control.

“Fitness and cycling are becoming synonymous with San Jose and Silicon Valley. Engaging the community in this exciting world-class sporting event has helped further raise awareness about cycling, and its health and ‘green’ benefits while continuing the Tour’s popularity and success. This is why we are excited to host in Downtown San Jose the Stage 4 start of the Amgen Tour of California and further promote fitness and cycling here in the region,” said Carl Guardino, co-chair, local organizing committee for the race.

Already considered cycling’s most important and successful road race in the United States, the 2009 Amgen Tour of California will be expanded to cover more than 800 miles over nine days. The event’s fourth running is scheduled for February 14-22, 2009. Traveling almost the entire length of California, the race will begin in the state's capital, Sacramento, and end in San Diego County for the first time.

"Volunteers are essential to the success of the Amgen Tour of California," said Andrew Messick, president of AEG Sports, presenter of the race. "The support of the communities we travel through has been vital in making the Amgen Tour of California the most successful cycling race in the United States, and with the expanded route in 2009, volunteers will be more important than ever. It is a great way to take part in an event that will capture the attention of local communities and the world."

More than 4,500 volunteers in communities throughout the state participated in last year's race, making it seamless and successful from start to finish, and establishing it as the largest sporting event in the state of California. In each of the start and finish cities, as many as 350 local volunteers were recruited to help staff the race.

The majority of volunteers are needed to serve as course marshals, providing support for the 75 professional course marshals that travel with the tour and support the local law enforcement authorities in each city. Course marshal volunteers have an opportunity to be on the race route, close to the cyclists, with responsibility for monitoring pedestrian traffic, barricades and street closures.

Volunteer positions for the 2009 Amgen Tour of California include:

- Local Stage Course Marshal – Assigned a designated area along the race course to assist with the coordination and safety of the field of play
- Media – Assist media operations staff, including distribution of media credentials, general media Q&A, office set-up, etc.
- Medical Control – Escort athletes to and from medical tent for post-race testing
- Security – Assist security staff with access-control, including on-course, hospitality, awards, green room and press conference
- Site Decoration/Restoration – Assist logistics crew with hanging and tear-down of event decor
- Lifestyle Festival EXPO – Assist lifestyle festival staff with expo coordination
- Sweepstakes Surveyor – Help ensure lifestyle festival attendees are aware of the official sweepstakes

- Volunteer Check-in – Assist Local Organizing Committee volunteer coordinator with set-up, check-in/registration and deployment

Volunteers must be over the age of 18 or accompanied by an adult. The online sign-up form offers volunteers the opportunity to rank their top-three job preferences, and every attempt is made to match volunteers to their area of interest. Shortly after filling out the online form, volunteers will be contacted by the local organizing committee for further information.
